Centre Wellington Chamber of Commerce hosts a second annual Wellington County Town Hall

The Centre Wellington Chamber of Commerce is hosting a Business Town Hall on October 30th, 7:00 pm at the Fergus Grand Theatre. As businesses start to look forward to business planning for the next fiscal year, the Chamber looked for a way for businesses to get the facts about projects that will impact their business. With this in mind the Wellington County Business Town Hall will feature presentations from;

Gary Cousins – Director of Planning & Development to speak to projects and planning issues within the County

Janice Hindley – Administrator of Wellington Place to speak to projects and plans for Wellington Place and Groves Hospital

Gord Ough – County Engineer to speak to the construction projects – particularly the plans and timeline for the Tower and Scotland bridges in Fergus

Jana Reichert – Economic Development Officer to speak to the County's Business Retention & Retention Project (BR&E)

Murray McCabe – Chief Librarian to speak to the Fergus Library redevelopment project.

There will be a time after the presentations for audience members to ask questions. Last year the Chamber hosted it's first County Town Hall and it was met with positive feedback. Building on last year we are pleased to offer the same opportunity for businesses this year. The Chamber's Board of Directors continue to liaise with municipal senior staff focussing on issues that have a direct impact on businesses at a local level. Helping businesses with required resources to run their business is what the Chamber of Commerce works hard to provide for local businesses. Whether that be in the form of member benefits, educational sessions, networking opportunities, the goal is to provide the needed information for businesses to make informed decisions. If you are interested in attending admission is free, and we will see you on October 30th. For questions, please contact Roberta at the Chamber Office 519-843-5140.
